the sessions of the Legislature, but he not become a recognized member of Albany resency until his removal to Albany, about 1822 when he was appointed Adjutant General. In 1823 he was elected Comptroller by the Legislature, having been nominated in caucus by a large mejority over Gen. James Tallmadge. Mr. Van Buren who was then at Washington, was desirous that Mr. Marcy should be appointed in pretime became a full member of the Albany regency and a promoter of the Van Buren dynasty. He had however, as early as December, 1819, co-operated with Mr. Van Buren in writing a pamphlet in favor of the election of Rufus King to the Senate of the

The early members of the Albany regency, as new recellected, are Martin Van Buren; Roger Skipner, a State Senator and U. S. District Judge; Charles E. Dudley, a man of wealth and amisble character, afterwards State Senator, U. S. Senator, and Mayor of Albany; Judge Cantine, State Senator, and one of the editors of the Albany Argus; Benjamin Knower, a hatter, and President of the Mechanics' and Farmers' Bank of Albany, and the most important man of the group in devising and carrying out plans. To these names were afterwards added to the regency, William L. Marcy, Benjamin F. Butler, Silas Wright, Gerrit Y Lansing, Edward Livingston, the younger Era-tus Corning, Edwin Croswell, Azariah C. Flagg, and others, as they respectively came to Albany as State officers or citizens showing peculiar sagacity and a faculty for keeping secrets.

Benjamin Knower we have mentioned above as ar important man in the group controlling the democracy of the State. Mr. Knower was a self-made man, remarkable for his good sense and sterling integrity. He amassed a handsome fortune as a hatter and dealer in wool, and was long President of the bank of which Mr. T. W. Olcott, the accomplished financier, was the cashier. The only office Mr. Knower would accept was that of Treasurer of the State, and in that office he had the confidence of men of all parties. As a member of the Albany regency, which generally met in a private room at his residence, Mr. Knower's counsel, particularly in important and difficult questions, was much sought after and esteemed-Mr. Van Buren and Judge Skinner were daily seen in their daily walks going to and soming from his hense, rarely attempting to carry out plans for the premotion of democracy and the success of the regency which were not concected or approved by Mr. Knower.

The first efforts of Mr. Van Buren on the organi nation of the regency were directed to prevent the re-election of Governor Clinton, in 1820. In this he was not successful, although the Vice President of the United States, Daniel D. Tompkins, was brought forward as the bucktail candidate. The majority of Governor Clinton was small, (only about 1,400,) and the appointing power fell into the hands of the triends of Mr. Van Buren by the election of a majority of bucktails to the Legislature. Thus Governor Clinton was powerless-indeed, a majority of the Sepate was opposed to him throughout his different terms as Governor.

The adoption of a new constitution, in 1822, threw Clinton into private life; but, in consequence of the sympathy created or him by his removal from the benorary office of Caral Commissioner, he was elected governor in 1824, and again in 1826, finally dying, in 1828. All this time the Van Buren dynasty retained their hold up in the Senate, where they had a mejority until the year 1839, when they were compelled to surrender the appointing and legislative power to the whigs, under Governor Seward. They recovered their power in 1842 by the election of Governor Bouck and a democratic Legislature, but were defeated by the divisions in the party in 1846, and finally restored again to power by the election of Governor Secymour and a democratic Legislature hast year.

Mr. Van Buren became kuown as a national poli tician in 1821, when he was elected to the United States Senate, and took his seat in Congress, in De cember of that year. His subsequent career as Senstor, Governor, Secretary of State, Minister to England, Vice President, and President of the United States, are too well known to require recapitulation bere. Our object has not been to sketch his politica life in all its phases, but to show that for the last thirty-five years the democracy of this State have been called upon and compelled to fight the battles of the Van Buren dynasty and to avenge the grievances of this ambitious leader and his family. The coming election, it appears to us, is to decide whether, by the triumph of the soft shells, or by that faction being able to show a plurality over the hard shells, the democracy of the State are still determined to sustain the Van Buren dynasty.

THE LATE GENERAL TALLMADGE AND THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE .- A morning paper on Saturday, after stating the principal facts contained in the biographical notice of Gen. Tallmadge in the REPARD the day previous, adds, that he was one of the founders of the American Institute, which is not correct, although the institute doubtless owes much of its success to the zeal and active service of Gen. Tallmadge in its own cause for about twenty years, since his first election as President, in the year 1832, more than four years after the Institute was founded. The organization of the association took place at Tammany Hall, in January, 1828, when a constitution was adopted, and Col. William Few elected President. He was one of the framers of the constitution of the United States, at that time representing the State of Georgia in the federal couvention. He died in this city, (where he resided for many years, and was President of the City Bank.) in 1828. He was succeeded as President of the American Institute by John Mason, who was one of the persons named in the act of incorporation, in May, 1829. Mr. Mason resigned in 1832, when Gen. Tallmadge was elected, and has since been annually re elected, excepting two years, when he declined, and Hop. Mahlon Dickerson, of New Jersey, formerly United States Senator, and Secretary of the Navy, was chosen to succeed him.

4 Mr. Dickerson retiring, Gen. Tallmadge consented to act again as President, and has since been unantmously re-elected. It is a ourious fact in the public life of Gen. Tallmadge, that he was always successful when a candidate for election by the people, for any of the public stations he has held.

The principal persons engaged in the formation of the American Institute, in January, 1828, were Col. William Few, John Mason, T. B. Wakeman, Peter H. Schenck, John B. Yates, John A. Sidell, James Lynch, Joseph Blunt, Raiph Lockwood, and others, few only of whom, besides the three last named, are still living. The Twenty-sixth Annual Pair of the Institute, it will be recollected, opens at Castle Garden, on Wednesday of this week.

Talk on Change.

The America's news had the effect of producing con edderable excitement in breadstuffs, and floor and wheat were active at better prices. Common brands of State Sour closed at about $6 75, and wheat advanced about So, to Sc. per bushel for prices total Cotton was dull, with sales of 600 bales. Pork was higher, with sales of mess at $16 50, and at the class $16 75 was saked.

There was a good demand for vessels to load with deals for England. Two were chartered to look at St. John's for Liverpool at 120s. Mr. A. C. Leary, who had orders for vessels to engage in the same trade, finding it difficult to charter them. had, during a few days of the past week, purchased three or four American vessels, and transferred them, at once to the British flag. Under the new English navigation laws this transfer has become an easy matter. All that was necessary was to surrender the American register to the custom house, when her name would be erased from the record, and she would cease to be an American ship. But our laws contained no provision which authorize the transfer of an English or other foreign vessel to the American flag, and the only plan by which it could be done was by an act of Congress. It was urged that Cong ress should pass a general law on the subject, and especially as an act of reciprocity towards Magland, if not of a more general character.

The ship Charles Crocker, now in Liverpool, of 930 tons burden, and four years old, was sold, deliverable in New

As far as the warlike character of the foreign news by the America was concerned, it was thought that it did not materially change its previous aspects. The death of Mr. Carleton, at Staten Island, was referred to. He was of the firm of Carleton & Clark, in the dry goods business, and was at one time connected with died of cholera. This was doubted by some, as a friend of his had stated that he was subject to bilious cholic, that disease. It was due to the public to state that the city was perfectly free from everything at all resembling cholera, and was believed to be never more healthy at the same season of the year.

Mole Rigging—One Man Sensously Injured.—On Satur-Most Rightne—One Man Sequences Industry.—On Saturday evening a party of men went into John Brown's porter house, corner of South Fifth and First streets, and, after drinking several times, got into a dispute with a man named John —, whom they knocked down and beat in a most inhuman manner that his life is despaired of. Two of the rowdies, named John Kelley and Charles Hannagan, were subsequently arrested by officers Van Dyke and Henry, of the Second Ward, and locked up for examination. One of the prisoners at the time of his arrest, had two large paving stones in his hands behind his back, which he assured the officers he was about fighting No. 1's boys with.

Circular to Ladies.—O. B. Goldsmith is a sware that, in urging upon the ladies of New York and its vicinity the advantages of a graceful, symmetrical, and delivate hand, he can only each the general opinion which the refinement and good taste of the sex have already prompted. He claims, however, that in organizing a superb drawing room academy, consisting of a series of five elegantly furnished parage, each convertible on the instant into a private stady, he has created a splendid nevelty in this leading branch of education, which throws a fascination around the art of writing, and renders the perfecting process a pleasure rather than a toil. He invites especial attention to the boarty and high finish of the styles he teaches, and to the rapidity, care, and toil. He invites especial attention to the boarty and high finish of the styles he teaches, and to the rapidity, care, and certainty with which they are acquired under his instruction. His rooms, No. 362 Broadway, corner of Franklin street, are durnished more like the bouldors and receptor rooms of an up-town mansion, than like ordinary school rooms; and may without egotism, be prenounced the most sumptuous and recherche apartments ever opened for private pupils in this or any other country.
